Smoky Waters

CONSERVATION AREA

MISSOURI DEPARTMENT OF CONSERVATION

About this Area

Smoky Waters Conservation Area in Cole County is located on a peninsula formed by the confluence of the Missouri and Osage Rivers. To get there from Highway 50/63, exit onto County Highway J and proceed into Osage City. Turn right after crossing the railroad tracks and follow Engineer's Road out onto the peninsula. There are 2 public access parking lots in the 1,041 acre site.

Historically, the peninsula was an island, known as Dodd's Island. Construction of the diversion levee by the Army Corps of Engineers linked the island to the mainland.

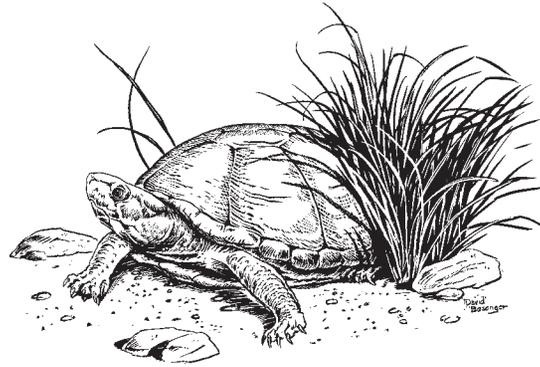

The area is divided into 2 tracts separated by private property. The easternmost tract is accessible only by foot along the diversion levee, or from the river by boat. During flood events, Engineer's Road may be impassable.

In 1804 the Lewis and Clark expedition camped at the base of what is now known as Clark's Hill, near the first/westernmost parking lot. Visitors can access Clark's Hill and view the Missouri and Osage River valleys via a ½ mile trail through Clark's Hill/Norton State Historic Site. To get there, from Osage City, follow Hickory St. until it dead ends at the Historic Site's parking area.

Smoky Waters Conservation Area contains riparian and successional forest, old field, marsh, and scour holes. The Missouri and Osage Rivers are accessible for shoreline fishing.
